THE EASTERN STATES.

Extraordinary Business Prosperity for the First Week in May.

LOUISIANA NEGROES MOB A WRETCH OF THEIR OWN RACE.

Pardee Certain of Confirmation—No Doubt Entertained that the President will Win in the Fight with Conkling—Etc., etc.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

Our telegraphic reports are meagre this morning owing to "bad wires" between San Francisco and Chicago. A heavy storm of sleet in the region east of the Missouri river and fire in the telegraph office at Omaha are the disturbing causes.

The Nation's Business.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The Public says: Exchanges for the first week of May, were on the whole, probably the largest on record, exclusive of transactions arising from speculation in stocks. The aggregate outside of New York has never been exceeded, but once, if at all. The exact amount at San Francisco, for the first week of the month, is not yet known, but if it exceeds as much as may be expected from the return for the last week of April, the aggregate will surpass the highest hitherto, $526,776,330 for the first week in December. In that week, too, exchanges at New York, exclusive of stock transactions, were only $750,220,362, while last week they were $804,205,889. On the other hand, the net exchanges at New York were larger in the first week of January, but the aggregate, outside of New York, was only $316,735,751. New Orleans is the only considerable city at which any decline appears in comparison with the first week of May, 1880, and that is insignificant, while gains at several other cities exceed 40 per cent.

Exchanges for the week ending April 30th at San Francisco, and May 7th at all other cities, were as follows:

New York	$1,144,470,789
Boston	93,297,094
Chicago	57,127,405
Philadelphia	56,075,477
St. Louis	18,057,534
Cincinnati	15,871,308
Baltimore	15,711,156
Milwaukee	14,130,243
San Francisco	12,358,512
Louisville	8,561,114
New Orleans	8,302,135
Pittsburg	7,701,768
Providence	5,897,293
Indianapolis	2,460,773
Kansas City	1,940,009
Cleveland	1,831,130
Hartford	1,504,624
New Haven	1,111,162
Lowell	453,375
Syracuse	622,939
Total	$1,467,830,548
Outside of New York	323,453,599

Those who continue to prate about general prostration or dullness of business in view of these and similar facts which accumulate week after week must have some other than an honest purpose. It is not possible for any man who does not deliberately shut his eyes to all information, to believe that the volume of business now being transacted is smaller than usual for the season. Day after day stories of disaster here or there are intentionally falsified for effect in Wall street, but business men of twenty cities in various parts of the country do not conspire to intentionally inflate their payments through the banks in order to create a false impression. The record of payments actually made, whether it suits the interests of speculators or not, is the proof which cannot be controlled or manipulated for a dishonest purpose, and the testimony which that record gives at present is very plain and emphatic. It is certain that the volume of business has hardly ever been so large, if ever at any season, and has never been so large within 25 per cent at this season as it is now.

Pennsylvania wants to Honor Wm. Penn.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 11.—A state senate resolution was unanimously agreed upon and sent to the house for concurrence, looking to the transfer of the remains of William Penn from the Jordan meeting house grave yard, Buckinghamshire, England, to Philadelphia. The resolution provides that copies be sent to Peter Penn, Ireland, and Wm. Stewart, England, representatives at law of Wm. Penn, asking their co-operation in the matter, and requests [illegible] the president of the U. S. [illegible] to [illegible].

Fire at Denver.

DENVER, May 11.—A fire last night [illegible] brewery was destroyed by fire; loss, [illegible]; insurance, two thirds.

Powder Magazine Explosion near Leadville.

LEADVILLE, May 11.—At 11 o'clock last night a building at the [illegible] mine, on Iron hill, took fire. The flames communicated to a powder magazine and a terrible explosion occurred which shook every building in Leadville, three miles distant. Fortunately no [illegible] was [illegible]. When the explosion occurred seven men were standing near the building. [illegible] and [illegible] were badly injured and others hurled a long distance, nobody killed.

Execution by a Mob in Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, May 11.—A Homer special says, that a negro boy aged 20, who attempted outraging an 8 year old [illegible] girl, and afterwards murdering her in the most brutal manner, was taken from the Bienville parish jail at Sparta, Saturday night and shot to death by a party of 50 men, mostly colored.

The Trouble with the Chickasaws.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—The Republican's Denison Texas special says Maj. Tufts, general Indian agent, came down from Muscogee Saturday night and started to-day for Governor Overton's headquarters at orphan academy in Chickasaw nation with Dr. Saunders, to hold a conference tomorrow with Governor Overton for investigation of the charges against Dr. Saunders which have created so much trouble between that gentleman and the Chickasaws. The feeling against Dr. Saunders is very bitter. He (Tufts) will be joined at Cedar Mills by a squad of U. S. troops to protect them. Unknown parties are reported to have fired into Dr. Saunders' house Saturday in his absence, nearly killing his wife and other members of his family.

Mill Closed.

ATLANTA, Ga.—The rolling mill has been forced to suspend because of the failure of the Citizens' bank. About eight thousand is due for April wages to 450 operatives who have attached the mill and machines.

The Operatic Runaways.

NEW YORK, May 11.—Beauplan writes explaining in a plausible way the disappearance of himself, his wife and Mr. Tournie. The trio he said were alone and set sail from a U. S. port much nearer New York than Montreal. He had dictated Mme. Ambroise's note sent to press reports.

Drop in Hog Products in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The cause of to-day's heavy drop in pork and lard is not announced. It does not seem probable that the sole cause was unexpectedly large receipts of hogs, for the number was not greater than has arrived on many days this season; but it is believed that McGeoch of Milwaukee, who controls a considerable part of the product, was engaged in shaking out weak holders in order to strengthen his own grip. The larger prices are maintained the better does it come to be understood that other strong capitalists stand with McGeoch and give him the benefit of their experience and money. The decline in pork averaged 60 cents and in lard 40 cents. There was partial recovery towards the last.

Sufferers by the Flood.

YANKTON, May 11.—Captain Clayne, sent by Gen. Terry to investigate the condition of the sufferers by the flood, reports that the officers at Fort Randall saved 700 persons from possible starvation. The quartermaster here issued 37,400 rations.

Going to China. Commerce with Corea.

CHICAGO, May 11.—The Inter Ocean's special says: Commodore Schufeldt leaves to-morrow night for China. He takes instructions from the state department as Attache of Legation to China, and ostensibly goes to carry back the ratified Chinese treaty. What he really goes for and what he is expected to accomplish eventually is opening of the ports of Corea to the world. The Commodore is the only foreigner who ever yet succeeded in getting a letter to the king and having it answered. He was there at the time of the bombardment some years ago, but his last visit was a year ago while on his eventful cruise around the world. He thinks in the course of six months or a year he can accomplish the object of his mission and have Corea accessible to the commerce of the world. He does not think it very important, however, for the purposes of trade, because the country is small and the people poor, producing nothing but rice and little gold. He regards it important though that a treaty of friendship and amity should be negotiated for our vessels in the India trade are frequently stranded there, and savages are liable to put shipwrecked sailors to death. To accomplish this should an arrangement be made will be his first task, leaving the matter of trade for future consideration. Although of small account now, Commodore thinks the commerce of the country will grow after communication with outside world is established.

Base Ball.

CHICAGO, May 11.—Chicagos, 11; Troy, 6.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Pardee Certain of Confirmation.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The senate judiciary committee has agreed to report favorably on Pardee to be judge of the United States circuit court, by a virtually unanimous vote, and he will be confirmed.

Tuesday's Caucus.

NEW YORK, May 10.—The Tribune's Washington special says: The caucus of to-day was very remarkable, and a senator in conversation with a correspondent this evening, for the good temper exhibited on all hands. It was a real family gathering to talk over family troubles, and the good purposes of all its members were manifested in everything that the speakers said. The general desire was expressed that none of the details of the discussion should go to the press. I can only say in general terms that the long speech made by Conkling was one to which Garfield could have taken no exception. It was calm and temperate in tone. It brought no accusations of bad faith against the president. It covered a great deal of ground, and justice could not be done to it by any mere outline of what it contained. While a variety of views was expressed, all the speeches were cordial and conciliatory in tone, and everybody manifested the strongest disposition to do everything possible to compose the difficulties.

CANADA.

Labor Troubles.

MONTREAL, May 11.—It is feared that the labor troubles are only beginning here. Wharf hands decided to demand 20, 25 and 30 cts. per hour instead of 15, 20, and 25c., paid last year. The freight conductors on the Grand Trunk railway applied Saturday for 10 per cent increase, refused. The passenger conductors are now applying for a similar advance.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

Rowing Match Off.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—W. Cole declares that the match between himself and Austin Stevenson, that was to have been rowed on the 1st inst. for $ a side, is off. He refused to row as he did not consider that he was being fairly treated, several changes having been made in the terms of the match without his consent and against his protest. He will leave for Victoria in a few days.

Fatal Accident.

Timothy Townsend, while scaling a fence at the Oakland race track last night fell and broke his neck.

Suicide.

H. L. Kasten, a native of Virginia City, where his family remains, committed suicide at 1515 San Pablo avenue, Oakland, yesterday afternoon, by shooting himself. Want of means the cause.

Released on Bail.

Cleofumas Cota, the Mexican refugee, whose case excited much attention here some weeks ago, was released on bail today.

Bad Wire East.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—Eastern wires have been working hard all day, and this evening the Omaha office is reported on fire, no particulars, very bad prospect for report.

Placing the Blame.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 11.—The coroner's jury in the case of Ida Forster, who recently committed suicide near Piedmont Springs today, found a verdict that deceased came to her death from an overdose of strychnine; that her companion, Miles R. Dodge, was indirectly responsible for her death, and the jury advised the grand jury to investigate his connection with the tragedy. Miss Forster's funeral in this city today was largely attended and much sympathy is expressed for the fate of the unfortunate girl.

Drowned.

Four Frenchmen went on the bay this afternoon in a small boat. One of them, Emile Bortier, was taken with an epileptic fit, fell overboard and was drowned.

Mussell Slough Settlers Honor their Martyrs.

HANFORD, May 11.—There was a large attendance at decoration services today, and all memorial services were most impressive. Four graves were decorated in the Grangeville cemetery. The procession was over a mile long. It moved through Hanford and to the cemetery where two other graves were decorated. These decorations and exercises at Wasson grove were accompanied by prayers, an introductory address and a dirge by a band. Col. Godfrey's oration at the grave was able and repeatedly applauded, so was the succeeding address of J. M. Lovell. Major McQuiddy was present and spoke most forcibly. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of ten be appointed, to be known as the monumental committee; that it be the duty of said committee by forming a monumental association, or by any means they deem best, to raise a fund for the purpose of erecting a suitable monument in memory of this day and in honor of the six victims of railroad greed who fell in defense of their homes; that said committee confer with the families of the deceased with a view to selecting one place of burial, better to attain the object of this resolution.

The following committee was appointed: Frank Wyrick, B. F. Burr, J. Talbot, Joshua Patterson, C. H. Robinson, T. W. Stansbury, J. F. Godfrey of Los Angeles, J. M. Lovell and Carl Brown of San Francisco, and F. J. Clark of Livermore. A second resolution as follows was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That this meeting express their deepest sympathies with our five friends in prison and besides them that while we honor the dead by decorating their graves, we express our indignation to-day as free people at the hatred of their liberties for a time by the inhuman findings of a corrupt railroad court. We hereby unanimously repeat our earnest appeal to President Garfield not only to pardon our friends and remit their fines without any delay, but that he and his cabinet use their great executive influence to relieve the people of the great wrongs under which they are suffering at the dictation of a heartless and unfounded monopoly, a corrupt, cruel [illegible] to exist among free people, and that they use their influence for immediate dismissal of [illegible] [illegible] as [illegible] Major McQuiddy and other settlers of Mussell Slough district.

NEVADA.

Suicide.

VIRGINIA, May 11.—[illegible] a well-known [illegible] of the [illegible] Nevada [illegible]. He [illegible] committed suicide [illegible] [illegible] at the bottom of the [illegible].

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

A Desperate and Revengeful Villain—An Insubordinate Crew, Etc., Etc.

VICTORIA, May 11.—The bark H. Black is still detained in quarantine. The captain's wife is reported to be recovering, and there are no fresh cases.

The Russian desperado Masse was put on board the [illegible] Starr yesterday morning just before the departure of the steamer for Port Townsend, having been extradited for murder. He was insane, [illegible] on all who have been keeping him in durance. The officers who conducted him to the wharf came in for a large share of abuse in the shape of foul language and threats of what he would do to them if he could only get free across to this country. Even when the vessel was no longer at the wharf, as the vessel steamed away from the wharf he held up his manacled hands and shook them vigorously in defiance of the officers on shore.

Capt. Adams, of the American ship Detroit, from Rio Janeiro, is still in difficulty with his crew. They refuse to do duty and are to be brought before the Nanaimo magistrates for offences charged. While in Esquimalt harbor they were in a state of great insubordination and a number of Longshoremen had to be employed to raise the ship's anchors, when the tug Alexander took her in tow for Departure Bay. Previous to this, complaint had been laid against the captain and first officer of brutal treatment of the seaman who recently died, as the crew alleged of ill-treatment to Allen Francis, U. S. Consul at this place; but a post mortem examination showed that the man had died from natural causes.

The ship Jas. Nesmith has gone to sea with a cargo of Wellington coal for San Francisco.

The bark H. Black for Portland, went to sea yesterday.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Disaster in Northern Waters.

PORT TOWNSEND, May 10.—The schooner Alice, Capt. Arey, arrived from Kodiak this evening having made the trip in seven days. On board the Alice was Captain Wessels and part of the crew of schooner Saint George, which was lost on the 27th inst., by striking an unknown sunken rock in the north channel of Saint Paul harbor. The vessel had a cargo of general merchandise and became waterlogged in about ten minutes after striking, and while in this condition the schooner Pauline Collins came to the assistance of the sinking vessel, and after taking the crew on board towed her to Long Island where the St. George drifted on to the beach and part of the cargo was then saved and afterwards sold to the highest bidder in the interests of the owners or underwriters. The St. George was bound from Saint Paul to English Bay, and Captain Wessels reports having crossed the same place for years without knowing of any sunken rock in that particular place. The vessel belonged to the Alaska Commercial Co., but whether she was insured or not is unknown. No lives lost.

Safely Jailed.

On a requisition by the president of the United States Sheriff Miller brought over the Russian murderer Masse from Victoria to-day, and he has again taken his place in the county jail to await his trial at the September term of court.

IDAHO.

Murder in North Idaho.

LEWISTON, May 11.—At about 3 A. M. one James Stevens shot J. M. Hederick, late representative in the legislature from this county, and the wound is supposed to be fatal. No witnesses were present. Stevens came to Lewiston and surrendered himself to the sheriff, and is now confined in jail. The shooting took place on the Potlatch, about twenty miles north of this place, and was prompted by a quarrel about the sale of a ranch.

MEXICO.

North Mexican Affairs.

GUAYMAS, May 5.—R. Harper, a mining engineer of San Jose, Cal., has bought the Santa Gertrudis mine, bordering on Sam Brannan's grant for $11,000, together with 400 acres of woodland. This is a very valuable mine.

Forty-nine miles of track of the Sonora railway are completed.

Rich discoveries are reported in the Gila pie district near the line between Arizona and New Mexico. A number of claims are showing large bodies of chloride ores. The district is forty miles from Lordsburg on the S. P. R. R.

R. R. Briggs and W. A. Symmons of Boston, have just returned from the antimony mines in Altar district, Sonora. They fully confirm reports of wonderful showing of antimony. Five thousand tons to Oakland by vessels via Port Salinas in the Gulf of California. Eugene L. Sullivan, one of the parties who are in sight, which is being mined and shipped, ties interested in these mines, leaves to-night for San Francisco.

Sergeant Mitchmore of company M, 6th cavalry, suicided this morning at Fort Lowell, by shooting himself, cause, temporary insanity.

Insane Murderer.

CITY OF MEXICO, May 10.—On Saturday in Palmer & Sullivan's camp near Acambaro, Engineer Sackerider became insane and killed Engineers Martin and Jones. Sackerider was killed by the chief of party, Tilley.

THE TURF.

Races at Lexington.

LEXINGTON, May 11.—Pope Leo won the mile race; best time, 1:4 . Talisman won the 1½ mile; time, 2:3 . Third race, one-half mile, Roderick Dhu won; time 1:55½.

Races at Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—McGregor won the 2:25 class. Trinket won the three last heats in 2:28 class. Dryden and Bonzetter each taking one; best time, 2:25. Little Brown Jug won the pacing race, best time, 2:19½.

The Fight with the Black Bottle.

[From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.]

The statement is so frequently made that we presume it must be true that Don Cameron treats himself too often. It won't take long for whisky to get the best of Don. He isn't the man to stand a forty-year wrestle with the black bottle, as some of his associates in congress have done. But even the best of them have to succumb at last, leaving the bottle in just as good condition, except as to contents, as when the fight started.

EUROPEAN AFFAIRS.

Marriage of Crown Prince Rudolph and Princess Stephanie.

THE ROYAL BRIDE WEEPS DURING THE CEREMONY.

Another Measure for Relief of the Russian Peasantry by the New Czar—Bradlaugh again at the Bar of the Commons.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

VIENNA, May 10.—The marriage of Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria and Princess Stephanie of Belgium was celebrated impressively at the church of St. Augustine to-day. [illegible] collected in the city to see the [illegible] which the royal personages drove to the church. At [illegible] commencement of the ceremony the church was entirely [illegible] by [illegible] stations [illegible]. A [illegible] the cortege at the church door, where it was received by Cardinal Schwarzenberg, at the head of his clergy, and their majesties took seats under a canopy over a throne. The bridal party proceeded to their places before the sanctuary rails, where they offered a silent prayer. After a brief address by the cardinal the marriage ceremony was proceeded with. At the moment rings were exchanged peals broke forth from the bells of the city and salvos of artillery were fired. At the conclusion of the ceremony the Te Deum was sung, after which the Hofburg choir executed the old German march. The newly married pair, accompanied by other royal personages, then returned to the city palace of Hofburg.

More of the Royal Wedding—Stephanie Breaks down Completely.

VIENNA, May 10.—At the marriage of Stephanie and Rudolph an affecting incident occurred at the most solemn portion of the ceremony. The princess, who had maintained apparent composure up to that moment, now broke completely down and burst forth into a fit of weeping, crying aloud and trembling with long suppressed nervous excitement. Prince Rudolph was calm and collected, acted with uncommon good sense, and succeeded finally in calming the agitation of his bride. The fears and timidity of Princess Stephanie had a marked effect upon the large attendance of royal and noble ladies, and caused many of them to shed tears. At 6:30 yesterday evening a grand gala dinner was given at Hofburg, there being 80 covers in gold and 64 in silver. All representatives of foreign countries, and the highest dignitaries of the Austrian were present. On the right of the kaiser sat Princess Stephanie, Prince Rudolph and Princess Victoria of Prussia. On his left were the king of the Belgians, Prince of Wales, Countess of Flanders and Prince William of Prussia. Opposite the emperor sat the empress having the Count of Flanders on her left. The music was by the court band under the direction of Johann Strauss. After the sixth course the emperor gave a toast to the happy union of Rudolph and Stephanie.

A Love that Reaches Across the Ocean.

VIENNA, May 11.—This morning the following telegram was cabled from New York to Baron Haymerle, minister of foreign affairs of Austria, by the Austrian consul at New York: "Theodore Havemeyer, who, with a number of Austrian and Belgian residents of this city, celebrated with a banquet the wedding of the youthful princess and prince. For our Austrian and Hungarian subjects, now citizens of the United States and residents of this city, in view of manifesting their faith in the ability and desire of the crown prince, to use his great power, to benefit the people, and at a banquet to celebrate his wedding with the crown daughter of the [illegible] constitutional of European monarchies, desire to commemorate the event, have formed an association for the protection of emigrants from Austria-Hungary."

LONDON, May 11.—A correspondent with General Villemotte's brigade says that the campaign against Kroumirs is now over and that against Tunis has now begun.

Waifs from the Deep.

A box containing a patent log and two lifebuoys, all marked "Bucentaur," have landed at Scilly. A large mast and buoy, also marked "Bucentaur," have come ashore on the west side of Lizard. It is feared that the British steamer Bucentaur, which passed Lizard bound westward on the 6th, came in collision with the schooner Alicia, as a medicine chest marked "Alicia" has been picked up and landed at Scilly by a pilot boat.

Russian Peasants and Land Ownership.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 11.—An ukase in relation to peasant rents, the terms of which have been settled, is expected to be issued in a few days. Melikoff and Dabaza have been its principal promoters. Experience of 20 years has shown that payments imposed upon peasants for land received at the time of emancipation of the serfs, brought much more benefit to landed proprietors than to peasants. In many cases these payments amount to more than the whole income derivable from the land. The ukase will decree that proprietors and peasants may come to voluntary agreements for complete transfer of ownership to peasants until January 1, 1883, when the period of obligatory transfer will begin. In the meantime, annual payments will be reduced forthwith to a rate which peasants are able to pay, and assistance will be afforded them to redeem their holdings. The government will assume the payment of 9,000,000 roubles annually to indemnify proprietors for reduced payments, required from accumulated profits on state bank, now amounting to about 3,000,000 roubles.

Rent Reduction.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 11.—The terms of the ukase lessening peasants' rents is now finally settled. The ukase will apply to 1,700,000 who will be relieved of a considerable portion of their annual payments on account of land, while all accumulated arrears will be remitted. All proprietors who have not yet arranged for selling holdings to peasants will be compelled to do so by 1884.

THE SENATE YESTERDAY.

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The senate in executive session today confirmed the following nominations: Michael J. Kramer, of Kentucky, now charge d'affaires at Denmark, to be charge d'affaires to Switzerland, vice, Nicholas Fish, resigned; Geo. P. Pomeroy, of New Jersey, secretary of the legation at Paris; Thos. A. M. Morris, of Colorado, member of the Ute commission, vice Bowman, resigned. About two hours of the session was devoted to tedious discussion of questions of propriety and precedent relative to the proposed removal of the injunction of secrecy from the whole or part of the proceedings on the Chinese treaties. It resulted in the reconsideration of the permission granted for the publication of the speech of Hoar. The subject was then dropped. The latter part of the session was occupied by a debate on the nomination of Matthews, consideration of which was only partly completed and is after which will be resumed tomorrow.

The Old Southern Music.

[From the Meridian (Miss.) Mercury.]

Northern feeling toward the south under present management is as cool as it can be under the circumstances. [illegible] of it to this part of the country? Is it has turned the southern heart and made southern men real men again. If we ever had any weak inclinations, here the radical south, the shame of, the conviction has been revived and strengthened that they threatening by menace of the south is in the maintenance of her loyalty. How long? How long are we to be robbed from the blessings of northern immigration and the influx of northern capital? Let it be a century if the doubtful blessings are to be attained at the expense of the sacrifice of every manly sentiment. We will, if we will, we derive from the [illegible] of northern men any way? They may bring their condition, but how do they benefit us? Well, they set us an example of economy and thrift that is in keeping with the southern character and for once we have this. Give us the old-time, the old time of the southern [illegible] [illegible] the sound of the old [illegible] stinging, strengthened the [illegible] of the yankee.

Mahone and his Opponents.

Rulers and People.

[From the Boston Herald.]

The assassination of the czar of Russia sent a shock all over the civilized world, but the fact that 6,000 Russians have been sent to Siberia in the last two years by mere administrative orders, without trial, is scarcely appreciated. The liberty of a people is worth more than the lives of many czars.

BEET SUGAR.

The Industry and its Prospects in New England.

[illegible]

[illegible] and conclusion which they state [illegible] the state [illegible] [illegible] the Marquis [illegible] to [illegible] the conditions [illegible] [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] of Maine [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

It was found that the ground must be [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sugar beets. It was found that the soil must be well tilled, and that sugar beets on this condition would pay the farmer and employ his sons at home with profit. It was also found that bad cultivation would not pay. This was in substance the report of the grange's committee on this point. For example, the books of the Maine Beet Sugar Co. show that the average raised in 1879 was only ten tons of beets per acre, but the committee say: "No beet producer of experience would have expected much under the circumstances. The seeds were planted in most instances without any previous preparation either the soil or seed, and in some cases upon green sward excepted. The experience of 1878 was not [illegible] to pass [illegible] Thus greatly diminishing the yield as well as rendering the process doubly expensive. But the farmers of Newburyport, Mass., who raised beets for the company, got twenty tons per acre, on an average. They had been accustomed to gardening and were better prepared than most others for cultivating, and consequently they found it remunerative."

The committee remark that the farmer, Frank [illegible], who [illegible] beets [illegible] for [illegible] [illegible] the following analysis [illegible] Professor Wolf and [illegible] Johnson [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

The committee and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] In the fall of 1879, Mr. Hunt, the superintendent of the Maine Beet Sugar company, reported that [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in New York, to [illegible] [illegible] and the sort, it is stated [illegible] in Europe had 40 pounds are about equal to 2,000 pounds washed, their crowns cut off. This is the explanation of the matter which has occasioned considerable comment among farmers, they not knowing that the pound of dirt adhered to the beets.

PERCENTAGE OF SUGAR.

The proportion of raw sugar obtained was seven per cent of the weight of the trimmed and washed beets, and in addition there were three per cent more of molasses. The sugar sold at prices ranging from 6½ cents to 7½ cents per pound, and the molasses at 20 cents per gallon.

THE MANUFACTURE AT PORTLAND, ME.

The factory began work October 20, 1879 and ended January 3, 1880, having worked day and night 65 days. During the latter part of the time it manufactured 60 tons of beets per day. It stopped for want of beets, as Mr. Hunt informed the committee that the farmers furnished them the beets, they could have run ten or eleven months per year, allowing one month for refitting and repairs. As it was, the machinery was idle three-fourths of the year. Climate and soil favor sugar beet culture but farmers are slow to encourage it and the company cannot survive with all their constant and much decrease in operation.

EXPENSES AND PROFITS.

The grange committee report that the daily expenses were over $200. The sales of sugars, molasses, pulp and the waste, amounted to $111,000. The expenses were $102,000, exclusive of the cost of the site, buildings, machinery and fixtures. Add to these expenses a charge of ten per cent. for wear of machinery, and the total expenses exceed $105,000, leaving less than $7,000 profit. Sometime, an amount spent in sugar in extending the business, directors think that a beauty was spent in necessary charges and establishing the machinery.

THE CAPITAL STOCK.

The capital stock of the company is $150,000. It is all invested in buildings and machinery. The company also owns and uses buildings and machinery of the Forest City sugar refinery at Portland, Maine, which cost several times their own capital. The total cost of buildings and machinery used exceeds $400,000. To this cost of the buildings and machinery of the beet sugar manufactory at Franklin, Mass., an expenditure of $, was about $175,000. Better buildings, and the latest improved machinery, imported from Germany, with a capacity of 200 tons of beets per day, can be erected and put in operation for $150,000.

FARMERS SHARE OF THE WEALTH EXPECTED.

The grange committee state that as far from the company's having made as many supposed an exorbitant profit, they have barely held their own. They offer to any farmer or granger in the state of Maine a share of the stock at its original cost, $100 payable in cash or beets.

CASH DELIVERY.

The sum paid for beets and freight was $55,421.75; for cutting and storage $1,582.55, making a total cost of $56,112.31. Almost the whole of this large sum was paid out within four weeks, in sums ranging from $50 to $300, to more than 1,000 farmers. In every case the money was sent by check by return mail on receipt of the railroad agent's certificate of weight and delivery. In no case was the farmer asked to wait for his money until the beets were received. Besides the $750 paid to farmers $12,000 more was paid for labor, fuel, etc.

BY-PRODUCTS.

With beets at $5 per ton a state bounty is needed to carry on the business, and eastern farmers need a market for them. But they must cooperate in the business largely or it will not succeed. The Maine company produced in 1879, 5,000 tons of pressed pulp and sold only 1,000 tons. Both the farmers and the company lost by this waste. It is evident, the committee says, that this pulp should be utilized. The superintendent of the factory at Franklin, Mass., remarked that the only question of their success was the cooperation of the farmers. At Secaucus, with the lowest freight, this [illegible] [illegible] cattle and hogs. If the farmers, as the committee say, raised his beets for $5 per ton, and buy pulp for $1 a ton, and pulp is worth more as food for feed than beets, it is greatly to his advantage to have it.

[illegible]

The committee suggest that deep plowing is very important and that beets are in rows [illegible] inches apart, where beets are [illegible] the rows are [illegible] inches and the [illegible] inches apart in the row. If the rows are 18 inches apart, but the distance [illegible] to 12 inches in the rows. The latter distance will give 24,000 beets per acre, which at two pounds a beet would be 24 tons. [illegible]

The cost of cultivating the beets of the committee report, which stand at [illegible] per acre. The labor of preparing beets per acre is no greater than that of raising ten bushels of wheat. Harvesting and hauling fifteen tons are worth $75, and 25 tons only $75. But suppose wheat worth 70 cents a bushel, it will take 107 bushels to be worth [illegible] the product of four acres of wheat.

CONCLUSION.

The committee further say: "If France can produce sugar from beets at no greater cost than cane sugar, admitted free of duty, may not the more intelligent farmers of Maine be able to do so with the protection now afforded by our high duty upon sugar? Louisiana produces on an average, less than 1,000 pounds of sugar per acre, while the average in Europe in 1879, was 1,000 pounds of sugar and 250 pounds of molasses per acre. The state of Maine

[illegible]

It is estimated that America consumes 100,000 tons of sugar yearly, the proportion of which is estimated at about [illegible] the [illegible] which require to be imported from abroad at a cost of $, and is [illegible] This amount will constantly be increased and the cost will be constantly increasing from our own treasury. These must be supplied by a home source. This industry is a good way to employ labor and keep money in circulation at home. A variety of crops is better than single crops. Wheat exhausts the soil and gives finally no return. Our climate is like that of France, which raises several hundred thousand tons of beet sugar per year for her own use and for export. Several farmers after a few trials proved to be adapted to sugar beet culture. Seed of the best kind can be secured of Rev. O. Dickinson, of Salem, and others in Boston, to make still further trial.

A lesson may be taken of the experience of the beet men and similar to Massachusetts and Maine, and still more to France and Germany. We can buy the best of [illegible] and begin the enterprise with the best [illegible] of failure.

We can have the benefit of the many new lines of trade, the nation now builds up in protection of our industries. We can secure the services of men well skilled in the manufacture from the east, from Germany or France. Frederick Schroeder of Franklin, Mass., is a skilful manufacturer and chemist.

The problem has been raised that the sugar beet of the belt is to the temperate zone what the sugar cane is to the tropics as a source supply. Fifty million hundred weight, it is estimated, consume 500,000 tons of sugar per annum at a cost of $270,000,000. The supply of this vast amount might possibly become able hereafter from the regions where it is now raised. This is limited by the prevalence of labor. The cane or sorghum, the one the tropics and now the beet are our sources of supply.

PEARLS FROM THE PACIFIC.

The Pearl Fisheries of Lower California—How the Capitals of Europe are Supplied.

[New York Herald.]

On the coast of Lower California an export trade industry has been developed by the near approach of that remote region. Two merchants who have been for many years were enjoying the markets of Paris, London and New York, with the rare and costly black pearl, which is found in a state of great perfection in the deep waters of La Paz. The latitude is a little south of Key West, in Florida, and to the north of Havana. Since the recent Mexican [illegible] been taken a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

The oyster beds were given during the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] fathoms of water. Formerly the pearl divers [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a certain [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] and [illegible] the Mexican government [illegible] that it [illegible] the [illegible] with [illegible] pearls [illegible] small boats of five to a dozen men and one man at six men each are fitted up with sleeping and cooking accommodations, and six months are devoted to pearl diving on and down the coast from May until October and November. The total product of a year's work is estimated at about $500,000, that is, valuing the pearls at the first cost price. The United States is a very poor place to sell pearls of any kind, and black pearls, which are most valuable, are bought exclusively by wealthy and titled people in Europe. St. Petersburg ranks next to Paris as a good market for them, while in the United States there is a great demand for diamonds of extraordinary value. Of the entire yield of Mexican pearls 15 per cent are white, 40 per cent blue, and 5 per cent black. The blue stones are of little value. The oyster in which the pearl is found has the shape of a large clam or saddle rock oyster, but it is smooth and brilliant, with all colors of the rainbow. The shells, which are known as the mother of pearl, are carried once a year in ships of two thousand tons, round Cape Horn to Hamburg, where they are sold to German merchants and manufactured for sawing into buttons, knife handles, paper cutters, and a thousand other ornaments for Europe and America. Americans are beginning to use this material, and it is thought that there will be a large demand for pearl shells in a few years. They are worth from $400 to $500 per ton. Boston buys more of them than any other city in the United States.

The value of pearls depends entirely upon the size, shape and color, and perfect condition. There can never be an arbitrary schedule of prices agreed upon, for what one man may be willing to pay $100 another man would not give a tenth part of that sum. The Russian nobles are especially fond of the black pearls, which would scarcely find sale in the United States except as a matter of speculation to send abroad. The uncertainties of the fisheries are great. Sometimes it is weeks and even months before a hundred dollars worth of pearls are discovered. The choicest pearls found during a season are worth from $1000 to $5000 apiece. The cheapest pearls are sold by weight. Generally pearls are about the size of bullets and found in the soft oyster near the place where it joins the shell. Then again, just at the close of a long and unprofitable season, an experienced diver may find a few pearls worth a fortune. Strange things happen down in the wild solitudes of those distant fisheries. Poor men sometimes find pearls that a king might envy, and if the divers were frugal they could often rise above the obscurity of poor pearl fishermen, but such successes are generally followed by dissipation, which soon leaves the man as penniless as he was before.

The Mexican divers of the Gulf of California are said to be the most expert in the world. They go down into deep water and remain below for a long time. In former times many men were lost in this perilous pursuit after submarine treasure. English diving suits are said to be the safest and most satisfactory, and superior to the French article, but American hose-pipes are unsurpassed. Several years ago a large number of divers lost their lives in one season because of the defective English hose tubing. Since then there have not been many serious accidents. The loss of life caused by the exposure and hardships of pearl fishing is considerable, and the men generally retire after a few years of active service to spend the rest of their wretched days in trying to find relief for a rheumatic paralysis which generally closes a pearl fisher's life. The lower currents of the sea at a depth of eighteen to twenty fathoms are very cold even in the tropics, and the pressure is excessive. The blood gets cold, chilled and [illegible] so that to paint often, [illegible] [illegible] only the strongest constitutions can long survive the hardships of the pearl diving.

The divers see a great many sharks, but as a rule, they do not fear them, although they sometimes cut or break the pipes which supply the men with air from the atmosphere above. The danger most dreaded by the brave fisherman is the celebrated devil-fish. "They are all we fear," said the merchant. "They live near to the bottom of the sea. At first sight they seem insignificant and harmless, but if a diver or the air pipes come within their reach their long, shadowy tentacles of fingers suddenly clutch the object with a powerful, tightening grasp, until the man is crushed to death or the hose pipes cut in two. Many a man has lost his life through the wickedness of these devil-fish."

THE MEMOIRS OF PRINCE METTERNICH. New York, Harper & Brothers. For sale by A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco.

The four volumes of the English edition of Metternich's memoirs, which it must be confessed, are too cumbersome for general reading, have been compressed here into two twelvemos which one can hold in the hand conveniently, and read easily, for the type in which they are printed, though small, is as clear and distinct as need be. This is not an abridged edition. The memoirs are also published by the Harpers in the Franklin Square Library.

These volumes are justly spoken of as the most important contributions to historical literature that have been published within the past twenty five years. They are important as the autobiographic revelations of a great statesman, whose policy may be disliked, but whose ability and sincerity cannot be doubted, and as a calm and impartial estimate of his contemporaries, most of whom were notable in that remarkable men, and one of whom, Napoleon Bonaparte, was in some respects the most remarkable man that ever lived. His extraordinary career is only now beginning to be understood, for the fierce light which beat upon him during his stormy lifetime blinded the eyes of his friends and foes alike. Metternich judged Napoleon with justice, which history has not yet attained. Of course, the memoirs are not of equal interest throughout. No reader could expect it. But they are likely to take as notable a place in history as Sully's Memoirs of Henry IV. Fourth. Readers will be glad that the Harpers have put them in a cheap and yet attractive form.

A NAMELESS NOBLEMAN. Round Robin Series. Boston, James R. Osgood & Co. For sale by A. L. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco.

"Perhaps it may turn out a song, perhaps turn out a sermon," is the cheery little legend which will accompany each one of a new series of American novels by authors who do not put their names to the title page. The first is a pleasant tale, with excellent contrasts of place and character, the scenes being laid in Provence, Paris, and the bleak shores of New England during the reign of Louis XIV. The heroine, Francoise le Montarnaud, whose lady-love is not true, and who becomes Mrs. Francis Le Baron, physician of Plymouth. Molly Wilder is an ideal Puritan maiden, whose strong and true character, together with unusual beauty, console the exile for his Cousin Valerie, the petulant and self-indulgent beauty of the ancestral rose garden in Provence. The style is pure and straightforward, everything is well presented, and the reader is carried on without great call upon his admiration, but without shock of any kind. The French phrases are sometimes a little awkward in their introduction, being often not strictly what a Frenchman would be likely to say under the given circumstances. Yet all things considered, the novel may be hailed as a fair one.

HAWTHORNE AS AN OFFICE SEEKER.

[Francis A. Durivage in Baldwin's Monthly.]

Every one knows that the "Scarlet Letter," published by Ticknor and Fields a few years afterward, made Hawthorne. In 1833 I used to meet him at Goodrich's, and in the drawing room at Park Benjamin, Temple place, Boston. Hawthorne used to call, listen and go away without saying a word; but, as Cole said of the studio owl, "keeping up a confounded thinking." I saw Hawthorne some years afterward in the private room of General Peaslee, collector of the port of Boston. He was then in very good spirits and expansive. I congratulated him upon the recent election of his classmate and friend, Franklin Pierce, and he reciprocated by congratulating me on my appointment as private secretary to the collector of Boston.

"I have just been calling on Frank at the Tremont House," said Hawthorne. "He took me aside and said, 'What can I do for you, Nat?' I told him that I had long wished to see Europe and so I had determined to ask him for some foreign mission or chargeship. 'No, no,' said Pierce. 'That would be a repetition of Jennifer and Austria. I'll do better for you, Nat.' And so," continued Hawthorne, gratefully and excitedly, "although it is now a secret, to-morrow every one will know that the president gives me the consulate at Liverpool."

Then Hawthorne, who, as I said, was in a very expansive vein, repeated the story Pierce had just told him of Jennifer. It seems that just after Gen. Taylor's election Jennifer met Todd in Baltimore.

"Where are you going, Jennifer?"

"To Washington."

"Everybody is going to Washington; everybody knows Taylor will give you what you ask for. Now, the question is, what will you ask for?"

"You know I have always wanted to go to Europe. Well, I shall ask for a foreign mission or chargeship. You see, I can live on my outfit and save up all my salary. In those days the outfit and salary were $9000 each. I have thought of Russia."

On this, Todd said promptly:

"It is no use there. St. Petersburg is a horrid hole and the dearest in Europe. Your outfit wouldn't last you a week."

Jennifer thanked him, posted off to Washington and saw Gen. Taylor.

"Well, Jennifer, what can I do for you?"

"Give me the chargeship of Austria."

"Consider yourself appointed. I was afraid you'd say Russia, knowing your Muscovite proclivities. But I've given that to Todd!"

Well, Jennifer went to Vienna, lived snugly on his outfit, saved his salary and was happy in the realization of his plans. On the eve of his departure he called on the Countess ——, who was mistress of ceremonies at court, and expressed to her his regret that his social position as a bachelor prevented him from reciprocating the attentions lavished on him.

"I am glad you have spoken of it," said his friend. "Your country and you will suffer if you go away without reciprocating. But never mind. I will see to everything—do all the honors. All you will have to do will be to pay the bills. I will see that you have them promptly."

The Countess Jennifer's grand reception was completely [illegible] shares [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] French cook [illegible] Every one agreed that such splendid entertainments had never been given in Vienna. The bills amounted to $9000. Jennifer went home penniless and was glad to take a subordinate clerkship in the treasury department. Hence Franklin Pierce did not give Hawthorne a chargeship but made him consul at Liverpool, a fortune there, and "Jennifer and Todd" "and Hawthorne" never heard the name of Hawthorne without thinking of Pierce, Jennifer and Todd. Such is the force of association.

MATERIAL FOR TWINE.

Every invention or discovery tends to develop some new industry. When grain was cut with the cradle or sickle the sheaves were bound with ties of long straw. The same materials were used for binding bundles after the ordinary harvesting machine was brought into use. The machine itself rendered a self-binding attachment a necessity, as it was difficult to procure a sufficient force of men to bind all the grain that was cut by a machine. After years of patient study and experiment, two styles of self-binders were invented; one employing fine wire and the other strong twine binding the sheaves. Wire is somewhat objectionable, as it is liable to pass through the thrashing and winnowing machines, and to injure the apparatus employed for grinding and bolting. At present magnets are used for separating bits of iron and steel from wheat and other grains at most mills. Still the flour manufacturers in Minnesota and some other states make a discount on wheat that was bound by means of wire. On this account most farmers prefer to use twine instead of wire for binding purposes.

The amount of twine required to bind grain in portions of the country where automatic binders are employed will in process of time be immense. The manufacturers of a machine in very general use estimate that from 4000 to 5000 tons will be required for the year 1881; say 10,000 tons for 1882; 20,000 tons for 1883; 30,000 tons for 1884, and probably not less than 40,000 tons, or 4000 car-loads, estimating 10 tons to the car, for 1885. The use of the automatic binder will dispense with the labor of many thousand men in the harvest field, but it will render necessary the employment of many thousands of others in the manufacture of binding twine. It is plain that the new machine will give a great impetus to the manufacture of twine in this country. It will also serve to draw attention to the cultivation of those plants which furnish fibre suitable for the manufacture of binding twine. This industry will furnish employment for thousands of persons.

The principal substances now employed for the manufacture of twine are hemp, flax, cotton, manilla and the bark of the American aloe. The latter substance is also called Sisal or Sisal-grass from a port in Yucatan where it is exported. It has recently been found that the plant will grow well when cultivated in the southern portions of Florida. Manilla is chiefly produced in the Philippine islands and is imported for use in this country. It is grown and manufactured there. The other materials for the manufacture of twine can be produced in this country to great advantage. [illegible] [illegible] of the world and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SOUTH CAROLINA "ELECTIONS."

[From the New York Times.]

Some idea of the fairness which will be possible for Hampton to attain have been afforded at the polls for the better protection of life and property in South Carolina may be gathered from the facts lately produced in the election contest pending in the fifth congressional district of that state. At one poll nearly 200 colored men were kept back from voting; at another 300 to 500 were similarly intimidated, and one man was killed; at a third the polling place was covered by a piece of artillery, said to be loaded with grapeshot, and at a fourth a band of armed ruffians drove 400 negroes from the ballot boxes. The votes of one heavily republican precinct were thrown out because the managers closed the polls at 1 o'clock, and of another because a second box was needed to hold the surplus tickets, while in a third the poll was not opened at all. Of course, the game of intimidation in the Palmetto state would not be the child's play that it is if the negro should happen to discover that he could do some shooting too, but it is a trifle ridiculous to have it gravely asserted that there is any menace to life or property from a class of voters who can be terrified by an old cannon or by a company of roughs armed with rusty shot-guns. Unless Mr. Hampton and his friends put a stop to this sort of thing without waiting for the convenient time alluded to in the Senate, they will probably discover that the game is too easy to remain so entirely one-sided.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 12, 1881.

THE DO[illegible]M [illegible] THE S[illegible]STEM.

It is ju[illegible] by the Chicago Times that Brady of the star route frauds, in defending himself, has implicated members of congress in a scandalous and shameful public disgrace. There is no merit, or novelty, he says, in the present exposure of the star route stealing. "All the charges now made have been made before; were made incessantly during the winter of 1879 and 1880, and an investigation was made by the house appropriation committee, thorough and far reaching." Yet the committee "unanimously recommended a large increase over the appropriations for the previous year, and congress granted the full amount asked for by the department, thereby justifying the increase of compensation" on the ninety three "expedited" mail routes. To put the statement of Mr. Brady in other words, congress voted all the money which the star route ringsters wished to steal. Of course the idea which Brady aims to convey is that a congressional inquiry has shown that there is no foundation for the present allegations of corruption. But such is not the fact. Nor was the inquiry made by the appropriation committee in the winter of 1879-80 the only one that has been made. An investigation was made by authority of the house in 1876, and the committee found the charges to be fully supported by the evidence. In their report they said:

> The ring of contractors seems, from the evidence, to have embraced men of more or less prominence and experience, and to have numbered from thirty to forty persons, familiarly known among the clerks as the "forty thieves," . . . . who have taken advantage of their position to establish a system of organized plunder, and as an auxiliary thereto have prepared to corrupt that class of people who find positions of public trust, and in carrying out their plans have largely debauched a whole department and community. . . . . They have bribed clerks in the contract office. . . . . By corrupt use of money, by false representations, and by manufactured petitions, they have induced the department to establish service on lines where public convenience did not require it. . . . . They have by corrupt means obtained certificates for service not rendered. They have paid large sums of money to officials to control contracts.

So said the report of a committee raised by congress in 1876 to inquire into the star route rascality. Upon such a report, a rational supposition would arise that an opposition congress, deeming its special mission to be the advertising of democratic party virtue by discovering and reforming faults in the administration of its adversary, would take some energetic action. We cannot doubt that the report, in all its sweeping charges of fraud, corruption and robbery, was substantially correct. Yet no measure was even proposed to put a stop to the corruption and robbery which the committee exhibited, with the evidence, to the house. With the facts before them proving the roguery of "the forty thieves," the virtuous opposition voted all the money the scoundrels wished to steal.

What was the reason? Men of both parties were involved. The republican rascals were secure from prosecution because an equal number of democratic rascals of influence and prominence were involved with them. The truth simply is that the star route thieves, like the whisky ring thieves, carried on their plundering operations successfully until they came to be a power stronger than the government, and able to control the legislature. The whisky thieves were attacked by a temeritous solicitor of the treasury of the name of Binkley. The upshot was, not that whisky thievery was stopped, but that the rash Binkley had to step down and out, and the rascals went on with their work for a considerable time longer, till the "press brigands," as gentlemen of their kidney called the newspaper fraternity, awakened a public sentiment that overwhelmed them. There is a remarkable similarity between the case of the star route ring and that of the whisky ring. The first public officer to attack the star route rascality was one T. J. Holbrook, a special agent of the postal service under Mr. Creswell—that is, an officer whose special function is to detect and bring to punishment depredators upon the public in that branch of the administration. Having a clearer conception of his duty than the average postal agent in Oregon, he didn't pass by the star route swindling as none of his business, but started an energetic war upon it. He wrote no letters, saying that matters of this kind did not fall under his supervision as agent. That is, he conceived that he was appointed agent to render service to the public and the department, and not to travel over the country doing the work of some coarse, illiterate, vulgar and corrupt politician who had set himself up as a "boss" and exacted a bondman's service of every official who was such a milksop as to own his sovereignty. Agent Holbrook, having unearthed corruption practiced in the star route service, reported the facts to the postmaster general, Mr. Jewell, who proceeded at once to strike at the abuse. True, the star route ring was not broken. It even had power to force Mr. Jewell out of office, and his faithful subordinate with him. But these officers had done their best, and are remembered with honor. They regarded it as far more creditable to go out of office in this way than to remain in office either as confederates, or as passive instruments, of rascals who were plundering the treasury. It often happens that the best and most courageous men are sacrificed in the first attempts to reform a great abuse; and yet they never fail who fall in such a cause. The final triumph may be distant, but it is always sure.

From that time till a few days ago, the star route rascals have carried on their business without molestation, save by the frequent exposure of their rogueries by the "press brigands." These exposures led to another congressional inquiry into the star route rascality—that of 1879. Again the evidence established all that was alleged in the charges. But again, as in 1876, an opposition congress took no action, excepting to vote all the money the ringsters wished to steal. They did the same thing again last winter. With all the evidence taken by the inquiry of 1879 and the inquiry of 1876 before them, proving the star route rascality beyond any ground of doubt, the opposition congress increased the appropriation for the star route service by half a million dollars more than was granted the year before.

All this might seem discouraging were it not for the fact that in most cases of flagrant wrong retribution follows at the very moment when its supporters are most intoxicated with success, and seemingly invincible in the insolence and security of power. So it is with this wrong and these rascals now. The fight against this system of organized plunder, which controlled the whole postoffice department and even congress itself, only a few months ago, has suddenly been renewed with an energy that has swept away its main defenses, and even makes the plunderers tremble for their personal safety. The thieves of the ring have been dislodged from their old stronghold in the department, the fraudulent contractors are being set aside as fast as the postmaster general can examine them, the principles of the gang and their methods of robbery are being dragged into light, and a mass of corruption and rascality is being exposed which no congress will dare hereafter to ignore or condone. Nor will any future congress dare to make appropriations to meet the demands of the thieves, as former ones have so readily done. Very seldom has the increased service on which these frauds are based been asked by the people. Contractors have taken the lead in it, as Dorsey did in Oregon, sending out agents to work up "petitions," to gather lists of names with instructions to "see that they were not all in the same handwriting," and to sublet contracts in advance; on which the papers would be taken to Washington, get the endorsement of senators and others as the star route robberies in Oregon got the endorsement and active support of Hippie-Mitchell, when the routes would be "expedited," the pay increased three, five, or twenty fold and the government robbed of millions upon millions every year. The present administration is dealing with the system in a way that gives just encouragement to the expectation that it will be broken up by the roots. Honesty and courage will do it, and the signs are, fortunately, that neither honesty nor courage is wanting.

POSTAL AGENTS' DUTIES.

For the information of those who may have been led to suppose from the letter of Mr. Geo. A. Steel, ex-postal agent, that the duties of that official are very limited, or who may have concluded from the conduct of the average postal agent in Oregon that the chief duty of that functionary is to employ himself in marching over the state to work up the jobs of a political boss, we reprint the following from page 37 of the postal laws and regulations:

> SEC. 18. Special Agents, how related to the Postmaster General. The postmaster general considers special agents of the department as his representatives, and as such all postmasters, contractors and others in the service are subordinate to them. They are responsible for their official acts only to him. In the discharge of their duties they are required to act with the [illegible] The elementary details of the postal service must receive their unremitting attention, to the end that the purpose for which the postoffice establishment was created shall, so far as they may be concerned, have a faithful and complete fulfillment.

It is probable that Mr. Steel, going on the theory that his primary and paramount duty was to serve his political boss, never found time nor considered it necessary to peruse the volume from which the above is taken; else he would hardly have written the letter which appeared yesterday. The fact is, as the above shows, that in the whole range of the postal service there is no irregularity or abuse of which a postal agent should not take cognizance. But when an agent deems that he holds his office chiefly to render personal service to a jobber in politics to whom he looks for preferment and who claims his allegiance, he is apt to bring his actual duties as a public official within very narrow limits.

General Ben Butler has a new specialty. He now has no fear of a financial panic as the result of bad financial legislation but is mightily alarmed at the encroachments of business power over political affairs. The next struggle he says must be with the corporations and he has no doubt that the people will win in the end, though the fight will be long and bitter. "Free ballot," he says, is a farce in Massachusetts as in the south. The shot-gun is the active agency of control in Louisiana, while the power of employment and discharge is the weapon in the north. All operatives in factories, all workmen in railroad shops and all the vast army of employed in whatever capacity vote at the dictation of their employers. One party is only less wicked than the other in this bad business because it owns fewer factories. Ben is not in fashion just now but he occasionally gets at a hard fact.

If some other British big-body should die just now the great eastern dailies would have to issue special sheets to accomodate developments in the Mahone-Riddleberger-Conkling, Garfield-Gorham business and the mail route scandal. The New York papers average about fifty columns of which twenty are devoted to advertisements. Of the remaining thirty, five are filled with George Eliot, ten with Carlyle, five with Beaconsfield, and two with editorial comment about equally distributed between the three great dead people. The beggarly remnant is given to home affairs. One is reminded of the suggestion once made in a California convention to "nominate somebody to catch the American vote."

What Sir Rowland Hill did for popular postage, England's present postmaster general, Professor Fawcett, proposes doing for cheap telegraphy. Notwithstanding the low rates already prevailing, the government telegraph in England is a marvelous success, having made two millions and a half profit last year. This is practicable in a country like the British islands, where a vast population is massed in a small area. But in our country, where the distances are thousands of miles against only hundreds there, and where population except in a few localities of limited extent is too sparse for comparison with that of Great Britain, the problem would present conditions of a very different kind.

The Keely motor has come again to the front. A public exhibition was given recently in Philadelphia, Commander Gorringe and others being present. The machine is described as an odd looking collection of globes and tubes, consisting of generators and engine. A glass of water poured into half a dozen funnel-topped tubes produced in twenty-nine seconds pressure equal to 15,000 pounds to the square inch. This force applied to the engine caused rapid motion, controlled by touching an iron disk or drawing a bow over a tightly stretched steel wire. The experiment, it is said, was satisfactory to the specialists present, and the public asks for particulars.

The recent Strasburger blackmailing case at New York has so alarmed parents in regard to the possible abduction of their children from school that quite large boys and girls are escorted to and fro by servants, and many teachers have been requested not to dismiss any child before the close of school hours except by express request of some member of the family. Of course only children of rich parents who can pay a heavy ransom are in danger.

It has been some months since the Salem Statesman began to call attention to the swindling practised by the mail contractors on the Roseburg-Redding route; and yet it is not known that the department has taken any action to stop it. This failure may be due to the peculiar interpretation which Oregon postal agents place on their instructions and duty.

The courts at last have dealt with the umbrella. "There is a certain sociability in going off with an umbrella from the house of a friend," said a New York justice last week to an unfortunate culprit, "but to steal one from the hat-room of a theater is a different thing. I will hold you in $300 bail for trial." The decision marks an advance.

"My conception," said Disraeli 35 years ago, "of a great statesman is of one who represents a great idea,—an idea which may lead him to power, an idea with which he may identify himself—an idea which he may develop—an idea which he may and can impress on the mind and conscience of a nation."

Answers

EDITOR OREGONIAN: Please insert in your columns answers to questions asked of me daily, by mail, from all over the Northwest, and you will oblige.

FIRST. My reason for giving better value in a Lady's Dress or Dolman. Mrs. LITT and myself are devoting our entire time, from 5 in the morning until 10 in the evening, Sundays excepted.

SECOND. In the East, the same size of store, with insurance, on a principal street, costs fully five times the amount we pay.

THIRD. As it takes from 30 to 60 days to get a Dress from New York, they are compelled to charge fancy prices, as they have to make them up and wait these chances, and often one-half the Dresses are kept on hand as "dead" stock.

FOURTH. I am living among you, and but one day's notice is required; by next day's mail the Dress is ready to be shipped. Having worked for Messmann's Suit House, I am enabled to state the above facts.

Further. The pictures in which catalogues sent out look beautiful, but when it comes to examining the work, my Dresses are superior, as good hands in New York are getting better wages than in Portland.

ANSWER REGARDING FREIGHT.

On Saturday Capt. Holman had a freight bill of $2.85 on a small box containing gimps, fringes and tassels, amounting to $385.12, which can be calculated is only about two-thirds of a cent freight, while in New York the insurance on $385 is 7 and 8 per cent.

THE CREOLE LECTURE.—Mrs. Henderson's lecture yesterday evening at the Unitarian chapel consisted of a series of sketches, in which the characters of a family of Creoles and their servants were divertingly described. The conversations were given in French, and the manner of impatience, tenderness, or pique, pathos, was almost acted by the speaker. It is difficult to report these scenes or to select from among them when all were so good, but the description of the quarrel of the old man over his breakfast, and the various outwittings of his wife, the adroitness of Lucinda, the domestic, and the description of the humility and grievance of Paterie, the old slave servitor, may be especially noted. The fight over the coal scuttle, and the picture of the old Frenchman slinking off to the warm fireside of the neighbor tenant—was cleverly given, and through all the sketches, simple as were the materials, a vivid impression of the life led, and characteristics uppermost in such a family, was given and received. Before the lecture, Mr. Van Bearden sang finely a French song—of which we did not learn the name. Mr. Coursen accompanying. Mr. Henderson's rendering of the earlier difficult courtship of Bluff King Harry, and Katharine of France, was excellent and sympathetic throughout. This lecture closes the course given for the benefit of the south Portland mission, which has been a very successful one financially, considering that it is not now the lecture going season.

MEETING OF CITIZENS.—In response to the resolution adopted at the meeting of the executive committee on the celebration of the Fourth, held in this city last Friday evening, a meeting of citizens was held in Neppach's Hall, East Portland, Tuesday evening. Hon. Frank Payne called the meeting to order. Mr. I. N. Saunders was elected chairman, and T. J. Matlock secretary. A motion to appoint a committee of three to represent East Portland in the Fourth of July executive committee, drew out a lengthy and animated discussion, which was participated in by Hon. Frank Payne, J. H. Hall, I. N. Saunders, Joseph Fotchell and T. J. Matlock. As soon as the motion and the intent was fully understood the motion was unanimously adopted, and the chair appointed Levi Knott, Dr. Dave Rafferty and C. H. Hall as such committee. On motion the meeting adjourned, subject to a call by the above named committee.

O. T. CONCERT.—The seventh concert of the very popular series provided by the ladies' committee of the Open Temperance Society, will be given at the Y. M. C. A. Hall next Saturday evening. This promises to be equal to any of the series, and in some respects superior. There will be music by the Hallenden Brothers, new comers, and by Miss Riggs, the young lady balladist who has so suddenly come to the front in this specialty. An excellent parlor orchestra will furnish instrumental music. Negotiations are pending for the Chinook duet in costume, and for securing Mrs. E. F. Smith, the well known reader. Programme on Saturday morning. Admission only 25 cents.

FIVE HUNDRED AND THIRTY CROSSINGS.—The officers in the Astoria custom house, says the Astorian, have just completed a compilation of the number of times Captain Fred Bolles has crossed the Columbia river bar into this port, and find that from the first vessel to the last he has entered vessels there at the custom house 265 times. As he has passed out as often, this makes him 530 crossings of the bar, and he has never yet met with an accident that cost a general average. This surely ought to give Captain Bolles an opportunity to be able to express an opinion which should carry weight with it, as to the needs of our commerce.

CROPS—WOOL CLIP.—Hon. A. L. Dufur returned a few days since from a visit to his ranch on Fifteen Mile creek, Wasco county. He reports crops and stock in that portion of the state in fine condition. He is of the opinion that the wool clip for Wasco county will be at least one-third less this year than last. The reasons are obvious: first, a great many flocks that were sheared last year are dead, killed by the unusual severity of the winter, and secondly, many of the sheep that were saved were so poor at the opening of spring and have fatted so rapidly since that they have shed their wool.

THE "COL." AGAIN.—Parker is misusing Mrs. Newell's paper at Walla Walla worse than ever. When accused by THE OREGONIAN of printing a malicious falsehood in locating on Columbia river bar the wreck of a small vessel, which occurred at Tillamook bay, he tries to defend himself by quoting from the Standard particulars of the disaster. A man of principle would have retracted the falsehood. He might have been misled into the first statement, but repeating the lie by indirection shows him to be void of honor and not to be believed.

INTERNATIONAL GOOD TEMPLARS.—The following is the list of officers of Bethel Home Lodge, I. O. G. T., of the world, duly installed Monday evening by the D. R. W. G. T., Rev. R. S. Stubbs: W. H. Hunter, W. C. T.; Mrs. M. E. Stubbs, W. V. T.; Charles Clark, W. S.; Mrs. B. Purvis, W. F. S.; Mrs. E. C. Clarke, W. C.; J. Bennett, W. T.; J. McMillen, W. M.; Miss Ellen Babb, W. I. G.; E. B. Whittle, W. O. G.; Miss E. Babb, W. D. M.; Robert Stanton, W. A. S.; J. A. McCarn, P. W. C. T.

ADMITTED TO PROBATE.—The last will and testament of the late Mrs. Helen W. Giff was admitted to probate yesterday by the county court. The deceased bequeaths all her estate, of whatever name and nature, real, personal and mixed, to Wm. M. Gifford, her husband, for his sole use and benefit. By the provision of the will Mr. Gifford is appointed sole executor of the same. The will is dated March 11, 1881.

THE "STATE'S" BEST TIME.—In answer to numerous inquiries as to the best time made by a steamship between Astoria and San Francisco, we would state that the "State of California" made the passage from the dock at Astoria to Meiggs' wharf, San Francisco, in 37 hours and 35 minutes; time from bar to bar, 35 hours and 10 minutes. This was the fastest trip ever made between the points mentioned.

BEET SUGAR.—An article by Dr. Atkinson on the beet sugar industry of New England, with suggestions as to the feasibility of the industry here, published to-day, will be found worthy the attention of all who take an interest in such a subject. We have a sample of the New England beet sugar, which is quite perfect. Any one may see it who will take the trouble to call at this office.

THE NEW STEAMER.—Work on the new steamboat which is being built by Smith & Paquet at their yard on the east bank of the river, for the Oregon Railway Co., is being crowded forward with all haste, and the craft will soon be ready to launch. Most of her planking is on and the hull calked so that in case of a sudden rise in the river she will be launched without injury.

DAILY LINE TO SPOKAN FALLS.—A letter received yesterday from Mr. H. M. McCartney, chief engineer of the Pend d'Oreille division of the N. P. R., announces that the track is now laid for 100 miles from Ainsworth, and that stages run daily from the terminus to Spokan Falls, instead of tri-weekly, as heretofore.

STRAWBERRIES.—Mr. T. C. Tingle, who lives near Mount Tabor, brought in to this office a sample lot of strawberries. Although the first of the season, the berries are large, well developed and very delicious. Mr. Tingle has a large crop of strawberries which will soon be ready for market.

OREGON PRESBYTERY.—The Presbytery of Oregon convened yesterday at the First Presbyterian church of this city. A number of ministers were in attendance from various portions of the state. The sessions thus far, have been both interesting and profitable.

ROOM SECURED.—Messrs. Zieber & Knowles, proprietors of the Clarendon, have generously tendered the use of the hotel parlor to the warehousemen and millers, for their meeting, soon to take place. The offer has been accepted.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver an opinion in this court this morning, in the case of the "Canada" upon the libel of Whitlock & Slover, for supplies furnished such vessel in the port of New York.

HALF FARE.—Interior millers and warehousemen, attending the meeting to be held in this city on the evening of the 16th inst. will receive return passes by the O. & C. & Western Oregon railroad, free.

S. S. COLUMBIA.—The steamer Columbia arrived at San Francisco at 11 P. M. Tuesday evening, being 36 hours and 45 minutes from bar to bar.

ACCIDENT.—Yesterday morning, while stepping from a street car, Mr. J. B. Congle fell and fractured his left arm.

The building on the southwest corner of First and Washington streets, now undergoing repairs, preparatory to being occupied by Isaac Barman (The Fighting Clothier), has not Tumbled Down, as the iron supporters are in place, and Barman proposes and is determined to sell clothing at 90 cents on the dollar by next Saturday, even if it has to be done in the store if unfinished, by the side of the carpenter's hammer.

Auction sale of Unclaimed Baggage and Merchandise. T. J. O'Connor & Co., will sell at 10 o'clock this morning at Ainsworth wharf, a large lot of unclaimed baggage and merchandise.

Barbey still liveth, and as usual repaireth disabled sewing machines at 32 Yamhill street.

Stone is making a big spread at the corner of Ash and First, and he is enjoying a big run of trade too. Nothing like being ahead.

Weather permitting, the Taylor street M. E. Sunday school will hold its annual picnic excursion on Saturday, May 14, 1881, at Oswego. Will start from the foot of Morrison street at 9 A. M. Tickets at J. F. Gill's.

Genuine home-made taffys and chewing creams made fresh every day at Durner's Post Office Candy store, opposite post office, Fifth and Morrison.

The ratification of the Chinese treaty will be celebrated by Uncle Myers, in a manner worthy of the occasion, consequently his rate of interest will be lowered.

Travelers bound for the new mines are informed that Uncle Myers can supply them with regular outfits 50 per cent. less than any other firm in Portland.

Opera caramels a specialty, made fresh every day. Wholesale and retail at Durner's Post Office Candy store, opposite post office, Fifth and Morrison.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

"Everybody interested in ladies' dresses and dolmans, should read Litt's advertisement under 'new to-day.'" This gentleman has advertised with us for nearly five years, and we can safely say that every word ever inserted in our columns by that gentleman is solid reasoning and the fact. It is only two years since he started his Ladies' Suit House with three hands and Mrs. Litt, and to-day thirty-eight hands are employed in his store and his Mail Order Department over Olds & King's dry goods store.

GEORGE WRIGHT POST.

THE MEMBERS HOLD THE LAST SOCIAL OF THE SEASON.

A Very Handsome Silk Banner and Drum Presented the Organization by the Ladies.

George Wright Post No. 1, Grand Army of the Republic, gave the last social of the season last evening at Turn Halle. The affair was very enjoyable in every respect, and reflects much credit on the members of the post.

At 8:30 the members of the post arrived at the hall from their armory in full uniform. There were about 50 men in line under command of Capt. N. S. Pierce, the post commander. Just as the members filed into the hall the band struck up "Georgia March," to the inspiring strains of which the men kept perfect time. For ten minutes or more the members marched about the hall, executing a number of evolutions in very good military style. After marching to and fro for some time the men were brought up in line two deep in front of the stage, on which were seated a number of ladies, wives of members of the post.

After saluting the ladies, the members sang "Marching Through Georgia" with great zest.

Meantime the very handsome silk banner, which was purchased by the ladies of the Post, was brought in and placed on the stage. Mrs. Summers, to whom was delegated the pleasant task of formally presenting the banner to the Post, advanced, and in a few appropriate and well selected words made the presentation address.

At the close the lady was loudly applauded, and the Post sang "The Battle Cry of Freedom" with very hearty earnestness.

Capt. N. S. Pierce, on behalf of the Post, advanced, and, receiving the banner from Mrs. Summers, made the response. His remarks were brief, but fitly made and heartily applauded.

Mrs. Summers then presented the Post, on behalf of the ladies, a very handsome drum. This was received by Capt. Pierce, who pleasantly said that he hoped those present would excuse him from making "another speech."

Three rousing cheers were then given for the ladies who had so generously presented the banner and drum, after which the members wheeled about and resumed the march. A few evolutions were made, when Capt. Pierce gave the order "break ranks." The next work of command was "take partners for the grand march," an order which was immediately obeyed. Dancing followed, and was continued until after midnight. The large hall was crowded to its capacity, not less than 300 persons being present.

The banner is a most elegant one. It is four feet wide by six long, is of fine silk, and very beautifully painted. On one side appear in fine gilt letters the words: "George Wright Post Grand Army of the Republic, No. 1, Department of Oregon, Instituted July 8th, 1878, Portland, Oregon." In the center of the banner is painted a large fac simile of the grand army badge. In the center of the badge, star-shaped, appear the figure of a woman kneeling, appealing to justice for protection, and a soldier and marine clasping hands above her. On the reverse side of the banner is a fac simile of 22 corps badges; also the words "Presented by the Wives of Comrades, May 11, 1881." The banner is elegantly mounted on a polished staff and cross bar, surmounted by a golden eagle, silken cord and tassel to correspond. Mr. T. A. Clark, of firm of Wm. Berger, designed and painted the banner. His work stamps him as an artist of great skill and fine taste. The sewing of the banner was done by Mrs. C. F. Meserve, and was executed with admirable skill, winning from the painter himself, very flattering compliment. This banner cost in the vicinity of $200. Everyone who saw the banner could not resist the observation, "It's a beauty."

AMUSEMENTS.

THE MINSTRELS.—Last night the big 4 were greeted with a fair audience. Every feature of the performance was very enjoyable. SUPREME COURT.

SALEM, May 11, 1881.

Court met at 10 o'clock A. M., full bench being present.

Jno. W. Hopill, resp., vs M. J. Kinney et al, appellants; appeal from Clatsop county. Judgment of lower court reversed and a new trial ordered. Opinion by Waldo, J.

Syllabus—An offer of a reward of $200 was published over the names of the appellants in the Weekly Astorian, payable upon the conditions therein named. The plaintiff having alleged a performance of the conditions entitling him to the reward, and payment having been refused, brought his action to recover. The appellants answered, denying that they offered the reward and denying the authorship of the publication.

At the trial the jury were instructed that if knowledge of the published offer of reward, though the publication was in no way authorized by them, came to the defendants, and they did not object to, countermand or deny it, they were liable.

Held that the mere silence of the appellants, under the circumstances supposed, did not estop the appellants to deny the publication, citing 142 Cal [illegible] evidence, sec. 197.

A STRANGE STORY.

The Victim of a Woman.

[London Cor. New York Times.]

"Come into the Central criminal court for a few minutes," said a legal friend of mine as we were passing the locality of that famous London tribunal. "You can easily excuse yourself for a short time while I speak to Mr. Poland." We went in. The business was evidently very dull. The trial then going on was clearly not sensational. There were only very few spectators. The judge was leaning back with a languid air. Justice Hawkins was the judge. The jury was just beginning to consult as to their verdict. In the dock stood a straight, well-built fellow of about 35. He was a fair man and pale. He looked anxiously around the court for a moment as my friend began speaking to Mr. Poland, the counsel who had been conducting the prosecution against the prisoner.

"My lord," suddenly said the prisoner, "I would like to say a few words."

It was a very earnest application. There was something peculiarly impressive in the tone of the man's voice. So much so that the jury suddenly ceased their suppressed talking and looked first at the prisoner and then at the judge.

"You had an opportunity of addressing the court; the case is now closed," said the judge.

"May I ask one question, my lord, only one?" said the prisoner.

"It is out of order," answered the judge, "but if—"

"My lord," said Mr. Poland, rising in response to a glance from the judge, "I have no objection whatever."

The learned counsel spoke as one who, knowing that the prisoner could do neither good nor harm, the evidence having already convicted him, did not wish to appear ungenerous. The jury resumed their seats.

"Your question," said the judge.

"It is the policeman to whom I wish to put a question," said the prisoner, with a sort of strange calmness, as if he had had a struggle with himself before concluding to address the court. The evidence upon which he was to be convicted was that of the policeman and the sentence was certain to be heavy as a previous conviction had already been proved against him—a previous conviction for coining. It was for the grave offense of coining that he now stood at the bar.

"Policeman, stand forward," said the judge. An officer stepped into the witness box.

"What is your question? You may put it through me," said the judge.

"I wish to ask him," said the prisoner, "upon whose information he arrested me?"

Mr. Poland objected. The answer might lead to a revelation of police secrets which belonged to Scotland Yard and not to the public. There was a brief discussion upon this point, and the judge overruled the objection.

"May I put the question in another shape?" asked the prisoner, "it may save time."

"Put it," said the judge.

"Was it a woman who gave you the information upon which you arrested me?"

Again counsel objected. Scotland Yard had its own methods of hunting down criminals, and how the police obtained information as to the movements of persons like the prisoner was not necessarily of importance to the court, or the public, while it was of great moment that the police should not be called upon to expose the detective secrets of the force. The prisoner had been taken with spurious money in his possession, and had been previously convicted of coining, and had undergone seven years' penal servitude for the offense. Released from prison he had gone back to his former habits; it was an old story, and so on. But again the judge ruled that he should permit the question to be put.

"Was it a woman who gave you the information?"

The policeman hesitated.

"Answer," commanded the judge.

"It was," said the officer.

"Do you see her in court?" asked the prisoner.

The officer looked about vaguely.

"Is that the woman?" asked the prisoner, pointing to a rather showily dressed woman with handsome features, but a cold, disdainful expression of face.

"It is," replied the officer.

"My lord," said the prisoner, with a slight tremor in his voice, "That woman is my wife!"

A buzz of surprise followed the announcement, and the woman turned her head away from the dock.

"I would like to say a few words, my lord," continued the prisoner.

"I have no objection, your lordship," said Mr. Poland.

"The Court will hear you," said Justice Hawkins.

"Thank you, my Lord," said the prisoner, no longer betraying any emotion, but speaking in clear, firm tones: "I have served seven years on a similar charge to that now preferred against me. If I am again convicted you will give me at least one-and-twenty years, and that will end my life. Before you do so I would like you to know the whole truth of this affair. I married young. My wife unexpectedly showed extravagant tastes and very expensive habits. I was very fond of her, and did all I could to content her. Honestly I could not keep pace with her desires, and we took to coining. She was with me in all my operations, aided in the work, assisted in passing the money. When we were taken the evidence was just as strong against her as me. In answer to questions I put to my counsel I was told that if I pleaded guilty and said I compelled her to help me she would get off. I did so, and she was acquitted. I was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. I served my full time and came back to London, determined to lead an honest life and to restore my wife to an honest home. It was some time before I found her; but I had obtained work at 30s. a week. I had only one wish—to make a new home for my wife. Eventually I found her. She was living with another man. His name is Foster. She told me that she had been obliged to accept his assistance or she would have starved. Foster was a fellow-workman of mine. I was willing to believe all she said and to forgive her. It was a bitter struggle, but I did it. 'Come home,' I said to her, 'and let bygones be bygones.' She said she could not come immediately. It would take a little time to break off with Foster; but she would do it. I waited, and every week as I received my wages I took £1 to her and gave it to her that she might have money without asking Foster for any. At last she appointed a night when she declared she would leave Foster. I was to meet her at the corner of Rathbone place. I did so. She said Foster had come out with her and was a street or so off, but that she would go and tell him, now that she had made up her mind to leave him. 'I love you still,' she said, 'better than any other man in the world, and would never have left you of my own free will; hold this until I come back—I will only be a few minutes.' I waited, and almost immediately a policeman came and took me into custody. I did not know what the package contained; it turned out to be false silver coinage!"

He paused here, and there was considerable sensation in court, everybody convinced of the truth of the man's statement, and impressed by its simple but dramatic force.

"I learned afterward," said he, "that when she left me with that packet in my hand she went up to the first policeman she met, told him where I stood, that I was a returned convict, a coiner of a power of bad money; she knew it, she said, because I had tried to pass some of it on her. That is my story, my lord!"

You could have heard a pin drop while the prisoner was making his statement. The Court listened with almost breathless interest. When he had finished, a sort of half controlled expression of wonder and indignation went round, and the jury looked up at the judge in a bewildered and puzzled way.

"Policeman," said the judge.

"My lord," responded the officer.

"Did this woman speak to you as the prisoner says?"

"Yes, my lord."

"Was the packet of spurious silver in his hand, as he says?"

"It was, my lord."

Upon the direction of the judge the prisoner was acquitted, and my friend started a subscription for him. We have raised about £70 for him, and hope to set him out over his troubles. His story has been verified in every detail.

Such was the story narrated to me by a friend yesterday in response to a casual remark of mine that a great deal of interesting current history of London is never reported in the London papers. The story is quite true; the case formed part of the business of the last sitting of the criminal court; and the victim of loving not wisely but too well has this week been introduced into respectable and permanent employment.

THE BEET SUGAR BUSINESS.

Not a Very Promising Prospect of Its Success in America.

[From the Chicago Times.]

About twenty years have passed since the first attempt was made to manufacture sugar from beets in this country. The experiment, twice tried in this state was very costly and unsuccessful. Beets could be raised containing a fair amount of saccharine matter, and sugar could be manufactured from them, but there was no profit in the business. In point of fact a fortune was lost in the enterprise. There were enthusiasts, however, who believed that the experiment was not fairly tried, or at least not tried under the most advantageous circumstances of soil, climate and location. They contended that more favorable conditions could be found outside this state, and they succeeded in inducing persons to plant and cultivate beets and to put up works for the manufacture of sugar and molasses.

A variety of causes favored the introduction of measures for the manufacture of sugar from beets. The belief that the establishment of a factory would greatly benefit a town caused many persons to take stock in it. Farmers were induced to engage in the raising of sugar beets by the glowing reports of crops produced in other countries. Men who make a business of forming joint stock companies presented glowing accounts of the profits resulting from making sugar from beets, with a view of disposing of shares. The bounties offered by states so stimulated the enterprises. The circumstance that this country expends many millions of dollars for sugar produced abroad caused many political economists to write articles favoring the home production of the article.

Last year six beet sugar factories were in existence in this country. Three were in California and located at Soquel, Los Angeles and Alvarado. The first remained idle. The second did little except to test the machinery and perform experiments, while the third contended with a series of difficulties in preserving the beets till they could be worked up. The fourth, located at Portland, Me., worked up a small crop of beets raised in different parts of the state and forwarded by railroads at a nominal charge. The state bounty is now exhausted. The railroads have become tired of carrying beets at a loss, and most farmers are satisfied that they can not raise the roots at the prices offered for them at the factory. There is a report that the machinery is to be moved to a new location, but it is quite likely that it will never be put in operation again. Another factory, located in Delaware, worked for a few weeks with very satisfactory results, and then suspended operations on account of a lack of material. The sixth factory, located at Franklin, Mass., was in operation about four weeks. It was closed by the creditors before all the beets raised by farmers to supply it were worked up. Stockholders and patrons were alike sufferers by the failure of the enterprise.

There are rumors to the effect that new factories are to be established this season in central New York, western Michigan and Canada. That the prospect for their success is not very encouraging seems certain. Enough has been done to show that beets containing a very fair percentage of saccharine matter can be produced in this country in liberal quantities, and that the sugar they contain can be extracted and clarified without great difficulty. Enough has also been done to apparently demonstrate the fact that there is no profit in the business. That the business should be fairly remunerative in Germany and France, while it fails to pay expenses in this country, should not be surprising, for the like is true of various other industries, agricultural and mechanical.

In all the countries in Europe where the production of beet sugar is profitable the beet tops, as well as the pulp from which the sugar has been extracted, find a ready sale for feeding to stock, which commands a very high price. This is not the case in America, where starch foods of all kinds is plenty and cheap, and where animals raised for meat are comparatively low. Again, it appears to be demonstrated that very large crops of beets, small in size and rich in sugar, can not be raised without the employment of a large amount of hand labor. Farmers in this country do not take kindly to labor with their hands. They desire to perform all their field work with machines. They prefer crops that can be planted, cultivated and harvested by means of machinery. Many large farmers in the west do not raise a sufficient quantity of garden vegetables to supply their families, for the reason that they require hand labor to produce them to perfection. The myriad of western farmers would engage in the production of sugar beets if in addition to a sulky plow and seed drill there were machines for thinning, transplanting, weeding, topping, pulling and cleaning the roots.

In southern France and Germany the wives and children of farmers work in the field and make very long days for very small reward. The light labor they can perform is the kind required for the most successful culture of the sugar beets. In this country nearly all the field work which machines can not do is performed by men who demand a high price for their labor. Sugar made from beets must come in competition with that that made from tropical and southern cane, and unless the material from which it is extracted can be produced cheaply, it can not be manufactured with profit. From present appearances a supply of sugar and syrups is much more likely to be obtained from northern cane than from beets.

THE FAMOUS OPERA SINGERS.

Annie Louise Carey and Clara Louise Kellogg are beyond question the most famous opera singers of modern times. In fact they have been acknowledged to be the leaders of their profession, as well as ladies of large experience and particularly good taste. They have probably traveled more extensively than any ladies on the stage, and, as a consequence, have had excellent opportunities of judging of the merits of different countries and their productions. It is certainly a very great credit to California and the balmy semi-tropical climate of the Pacific, to have had them pronounce Bladen's Yosemite Cologne by far the best they have ever used in any country. NEW YORK FREIGHTS AND MARKETS.

NEW YORK, May 11.—The freight market is still dull, and the movement rather slow with rates irregular. The Eureka has sailed. Her cargo comprises 16 part 200 barrels of sugar, 2500 cases oil, 125 cases canned goods, 150 barrels of whisky, and 300 tons coal. Tonnage is in fair supply, but there are no urgent demands for ships. The continental has been taken to load a cargo of coal at Baltimore on private account. Isthmus freights are nil. The steamer yesterday had 1000 kegs of nails for San Francisco. In regard to rumors in railroad circles mentioned a few days since, there has been no confirmation, nor have any of them taken definite shape, although there is no reason to doubt but that sooner or later some of them will be accomplished facts. The parties mostly interested are very reticent, yet enough has been made known to cause considerable excitement in railroad circles. Prominent officials of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road have gone to meet officials of the Southern Pacific regarding through freight, and the result of their conference was awaited. It is now known that the Pacific Mail have bought the steamers City of Para and City of Rio Janeiro, and they will be placed on the line during the summer, one on this side and the other on the Pacific. Whether the purchase of these vessels has any connection with rumored railroad changes, or whether they were bought because they were actually needed by the company remains to be seen. It is stated that the Crescent City has been condemned, and that the Acapulco must have much needed repairs, and that the purchased vessels will take their places. On the other hand, it is said that the vessels were bought to be in readiness to act as cheap freighters by the Union Pacific against the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe if there should be competition in overland freight. Markets are quiet.

THE TIDY HOUSEWIFE.

The careful, tidy housewife, when she is giving her house its spring cleaning, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than houses, and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasma, and she should know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters, the purest and best of all medicines. THE GENUINE

DR. C. McLANE'S

Celebrated American

WORM SPECIFIC

OR

VERMIFUGE.

SYMPTOMS OF WORMS.

THE countenance is pale and leaden colored, with occasional flushes, or a circumscribed spot on one or both cheeks; the eyes become dull; the pupils dilate; an azure semicircle runs along the lower eye-lid; the nose is irritated, swells, and sometimes bleeds; a swelling of the upper lip; occasional headache, with humming or throbbing of the ears; [illegible] very foul [illegible] appetite variable [illegible] with a gnawing [illegible] [illegible] accompanied by hiccough; cough sometimes dry and convulsive; uneasy and disturbed sleep, with grinding of the teeth; temper variable, but generally irritable, &c.

Whenever the above symptoms are found to exist,

DR. C. McLANE'S VERMIFUGE

will certainly effect a cure.

IT DOES NOT CONTAIN MERCURY

in any form; it is an innocent preparation, not capable of doing the slightest injury to the most tender infant.

The genuine Dr. McLane's Vermifuge bears the signatures of C. McLane and Fleming Bros. on the wrapper.

—:o:—

DR. C. McLANE'S

LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Each box has a red wax seal on the lid with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

Insist upon having the genuine Dr. C. McLane's Liver Pills, prepared by Fleming Bros., of Pittsburgh, Pa., the market being full of imitations of the name McLane, spelled differently but same pronunciation.
